

Developing next generation antimicrobials by intercepting AI-2 mediated quorum sensing.

| | |
|---------------------|---|
| Title | Developing next generation antimicrobials by intercepting AI-2 mediated quorum sensing. |
| Publication Type | Journal Article |
| Year of Publication | 2011 |
| Authors | Roy, V, Adams, BL, Bentley, WE |
| Journal | Enzyme Microb Technol |
| Volume | 49 |
| Issue | 2 |
| Pagination | 113-23 |
| Date Published | 2011 Jul 10 |
| ISSN | 1879-0909 |
| Keywords | Anti-Infective Agents, Bacteria, Bacterial Physiological Phenomena, Quorum Sensing |
| Abstract | Bacteria have been evolving antibiotic resistance since their discovery. The development of new antimicrobials is a high priority for the pharmaceutical industry. One approach is to target the quorum sensing (QS) system, which is a key component of bacterial communication and virulence. This review discusses the development of next generation antimicrobials by intercepting AI-2 mediated quorum sensing. |
| DOI | 10.1016/j.enzmictec.2011.06.001 |
| Alternate Journal | Enzyme Microb. Technol. |
| PubMed ID | 22112397 |